West Virginia Callers in 2018
to the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline

In 2018, the Lifeline received

2.5 million crisis calls from across the United States

10,650 calls were from West Virginia

Of the 10,650 callers, 3,649 individuals pressed "1" to be transferred to the Veterans Crisis Line and 40 pressed "2" for Lifeline’s Spanish Language Line.

Ideally, the remaining 6,961 calls in 2018 would have been answered by Lifeline call centers in West Virginia.

Of those, only 4,996 calls (72%) were able to be answered in-state.

Which meant 1,965 callers in crisis were unable to be answered by a West Virginia call center.

Established in 2005

The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline is the nation’s most recognized suicide and mental health crisis line.

The Lifeline is not one large national call center. Instead, it is a network of 170 independently operated, independently funded local, regional, and state-level call centers. Currently there is only 1 Lifeline-affiliated center in West Virginia. It has the critical expertise and linkages to local resources callers in crisis deserve.

To participate in the Lifeline network, centers operate to the highest standards of suicide care. They do an incredible job of de-escalating crisis situations, decreasing emotional distress, and reducing suicidality.

In the event local centers are unable to answer, the Lifeline re-routes calls to backup centers in our network (both in and out-of-state).

+26% The number of Lifeline calls that needed answering by West Virginia call centers increased 26% from 2016 to 2018

The Lifeline is administered through Vibrant Emotional Health and funded by the U.S. Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

Why is this?

How can I help?
In 2019, there is 1 Lifeline network in West Virginia

Why were only 72% of 2018’s Lifeline calls in West Virginia answered in-state?

Lifeline call centers set the hours and coverage areas for when and where they will take Lifeline calls. They do this based on funding and staffing levels.

Most Lifeline-affiliated call centers in the U.S. (including in West Virginia) answer calls on other helplines in addition to the Lifeline. Despite their very best efforts, call volume can, at times, strain center capacity and callers may hang up while they wait for the next available counselor.

When local call centers are unable to answer, the Lifeline pulls the call back and sends it out of state and into our national backup center sub-network.

When calls are re-routed to centers out-of-state, West Virginia callers in crisis wait longer, they receive fewer linkages to effective local care, and are more likely to abandon their calls.

Proven effective; needing support

Research shows the Lifeline is an effective, life-saving safety net for those in crisis (Gould et al., 2007, 2013, 2015, 2017; Ramchand et al., 2016). According to a 2018 survey of Lifeline centers, almost 98% of the crisis calls are de-escalated such that costly, highly-restrictive responses from law enforcement and emergency medical services are not necessary.

The Lifeline is federally funded to manage the call routing, best practice standards, public messaging, and technical assistance for its network. However, the funds that sustain our network’s centers come from state, county and local sources. Many centers struggle to find enough funding to operate and grow.

Help4WV, First Choice Services is a key component of West Virginia’s behavioral health systems because it represents an entry point into other levels of coordinated care. They provide critical services for West Virginia residents at serious risk, especially those with nowhere else to turn.

First Choice Services needs expanded support and more centers are needed.
