Alaska and the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline 2019

What’s the Lifeline?

24/7 free and confidential support to people in suicidal crisis or emotional distress

The Lifeline connects more than 80% of callers to a call center on the first routing attempt (within 30 seconds after the greeting)

and around 95% on subsequent attempts (within 60-90 seconds after the greeting)

If a local center is unable to answer, the call is rerouted to one of our national backup centers.

180 Independent centers across the country

Lifeline calls in Alaska

In 2019, the Lifeline received nearly 2.3 million crisis calls across the United States

2.3 million

11,877 calls were from Alaska

6,296 calls were connected to crisis centers in state

Of the 11,877 callers, 2,855 pressed “1” to be transferred to the Veterans Crisis Line and 27 pressed “2” for the Spanish Language Line

1 Lifeline-affiliated centers currently in Alaska

Alaska Lifeline Call volume has increased 208% since 2016

208%

Administered by Vibrant through a grant from SAMHSA

2019 and around 95% on subsequent attempts (within 60-90 seconds after the greeting)
Why were only 70% of Lifeline’s calls in Alaska answered in-state in 2019?

If a state or locality does not provide funding to a local crisis center, their ability to effectively serve all community members is lowered. Lifeline call centers in Alaska set the hours and coverage areas for when they will take Lifeline calls. They do this based on funding and staffing levels.

Despite their best efforts, periods of high call volume can affect crisis centers’ capacity and longer wait times can occur. When a local call center is unable to answer, the call is routed to one of the Lifeline national backup centers.

When calls are re-routed to centers out-of-state, Alaska callers in crisis often wait two to three times longer, receive fewer linkages to effective local care, and are more likely to abandon their calls.

Investing in crisis centers is investing in your community

These call centers are key components of Alaska’s behavioral health systems. They are a vital entry point for coordinated care, providing critical services for Alaska residents at serious risk.

911= $

A typical 911 call results in thousands of dollars in cost to taxpayers

Calls to Lifeline call centers cost a fraction of a 911 call

An emergency department visit or hospitalization is also much more costly

2%

Emergency medical services are dispatched for only 2% of Lifeline calls, reducing the burden on law enforcement and emergency medical resources so they can better respond to other public safety needs

Callers to the Lifeline have better health outcomes than people in crisis who are triaged with emergency services personnel

Over two thirds of our crisis centers provide suicide prevention and other mental health training within their communities

Investing in crisis centers puts money back into the community by supporting local resources, local research, workforce development and local businesses

2/3

Here’s How You Can Help

- Allocate funding to support Lifeline call centers and suicide prevention activities in Alaska
- Consider expanding state and local investment in call centers when promoting use of the Lifeline
- Partner with local call centers for town halls and other community events
- Utilize suicide prevention and mental health expertise of call centers when crafting public policy
- Invite call centers to participate in task forces, roundtables, or other forums on mental health and suicide prevention

To learn more about the Lifeline and the call centers in your state visit: www.suicidepreventionlifeline.org